

Colab. Online → Reducing the stress of Collaborative Work For You and Your Teams

06/19/2023

#Sure

What is it? → quick and easy weekly checkins for teachers to support their teams...

different ways of saying what it does. :)

- and get the job done.
- and provide feedback on certain practices to improve behavior/collaboration
- and to help reduce the stress of students working together.

name ideas:
have you ever been in this situation?

'Stepping into someone's shoes'

Mission: we nurture skills rather than judging students

Key words: Manpower Skills perspective → all different when working in groups.

Manpower → to tackle ambitious projects

Skills → to work w/ others and get the job done

Perspective → to learn and see things in a different way.

Self- & Peer Assessment

Feedback both ways

Focused on groups (not individuals?)

I would disagree b/c you're assessing @ ind. behavior to contribute to the group.

Visualizations now!

quote abt CL: working in teams is awesome! But it often isn't.
directly from video: "get the most out of them."

"TEAM WORK MAKES THE DREAM WORK!",
but does it always? NO.
That's why Colab exists to help all of those involved contribute to a specific outcome.
... "Learning and improving one's behavior is one more step to success!"

"WANT TO FEEL like what you're contributing to a project matters?"

HAVE YOU OR YOUR STUDENTS BEEN IN THIS SITUATION YET?

Professor —
"I wanted to let you know that Jadah hasn't been doing her fair share for the project. Chris, Stephanie and I have been the only ones doing our part. Can we work with someone who will actually do their job?"

Next.

As a Professor, you hold responsibility for collaborative work provided in class. In this sense, you provide support and guidance.

Next.

As a student, your responsibility is to pull your own weight while learning how to collaborate effectively.

Therefore, our team @ COLAB has made it easier and quicker than ever before

to address group projects.
